Seminar -- “The Fiduciary Duties of Conflicted Trustees.”

The trust-law duty of loyalty, which has been focused on preventing trustees from creating conflicts of interest, has neglected the reality that in many trusts the trust terms create the conflict. The conflict is structural. The question for discussion is how trustees administering such trusts can discharge their duties of loyalty when they must act in conflict.

Reserve your place now. Please note if you are an advisor who will participate in the seminar or a student or friend of the Institute who wishes to observe. To RSVP contact
